Today Date: March 5, 2021

Complaint: Complainant, [REDACTED], submitted an online complaint to the Office of Police Oversight stating the following:

“My name is [REDACTED] and I am an attorney her in Austin. I represent [REDACTED] [REDACTED] who was arrested for DWI on [REDACTED]. The officer [REDACTED] who arrested [REDACTED] knowingly made multiple false and outright fraudulent statements under oath in his affidavit for warrant of arrest detention. He lied about Ms. [REDACTED] not taking any medication, even though he documented it in the general offense report and you can hear her tell him on the body camera about taking medication. He lied about the smell of alcohol because the blood test results came back "below the level of quantitation". He lied about her having blood shot eyes. (watch the body camera video and see the attached screen shot). He lied about her "swaying" and "staggering". He lied about her "swaying" in the one-legged stand, even though she does it perfectly for 30 seconds. He lied about her weighing 125 pounds even though you can hear her tell him she weighed 140 on the video and he listed 140 in the general offense report. He lied about her appearing drowsy (watch the body camera video). In short he committed aggravated perjury when he falsified and embellished his probable cause affidavit in order to effectuate, not only an arrest, but a subsequent search warrant for her blood. This is NOT the first time I have run across officer [REDACTED] and his willingness to perjure himself. Look back at the arrest of [REDACTED] That criminal charge was also dismissed, but the evidence that is apparent on the video and the subsequent evidence revealed by the blood work substantiate that Officer [REDACTED] is more than willing to perjure himself in order to effectuate an arrest. How could he possibly detect a "strong odor of alcohol" when [REDACTED] blood analysis came back "below the level of quantitation"? Where on the video does [REDACTED] "stagger" or "sway"? If you watch the dash camera videos of Office [REDACTED] transporting [REDACTED] to the jail and to the hospital and back you can also see that he does not believe that the traffic laws apply to him and he rolls through one stop sign after another. [REDACTED] willingness to lie under oath is a disgrace to the uniform he wears and I do NOT he is worthy to call himself a police officer.”
